

The murderer was very short and wasn't able to reach higher than the lift's third-floor button.

During a big fire-fighting operation, an amateur diver was sucked up by a fire plane during a low-flying manoeuvre to collect water.

The plane then released its load of water, including the diver, over the forest fire.

During the funeral, the woman fell hopelessly in love with the man. He, however, disappeared immediately after the funeral before she could ask him his name.

She hoped to see him again at her sister's funeral.

The woman was playing Monopoly. Her piece was just two squares away from Park Lane with its row of hotels. If she had thrown a 'double one' on her next turn, it would have bankrupted her.
